Habakkuk's direct way

By: REV. W. L. TRIMYER

Lesson for June 22, 1980
Scripture Reference: Habakkuk
Focal Passages: Habakkuk 1:1-4; 2:1-4, 3:17-18
A Conversation Between God and Habakkuk [Hab. 1:1-2:4]

The Bible and daily living

Habakkuk was a person who approached God openly and honestly. We may learn a good lesson from Habakkuk and his manner of communicating with God. From Habakkuk we learn that simple, straight-shooting talk with God produces results, though not as quick as we might desire. God works in his own way and his own time.

What is important is not the use of flowering god-talk in order to somehow attract God's attention. God wants to hear from us in our own words and thoughts. There are no "right" words or "right" ways to pray.

We all know what it feels like to see our prayers go unanswered. The prophet Habakkuk experienced the pain of seeing his own country go to the dogs while he stood helplessly by. Time and again Habakkuk brought his concerns to God. He saw his nation become a land of lawlessness and violence.

Habakkuk's prayers seemed to echo off the walls of a silent hearer. He could not see any response of God to the suffering and agony of the victims. When God's reply did come, Habakkuk was not too pleased with what he saw or heard.

We know well enough that God's answers to our prayers are not always the ones we want to hear. God is free to determine events according to the way they serve his purposes, not according to our good pleases. It is terribly difficult to hear God's "no" to us.

Habakkuk's reply is not unlike our own. We fling our never ending "Why?" to the gates of heaven. Why would a loving, compassionate God allow such atrocious things to happen? Which of us have cried out in distress, "Why does God allow this to happen to me?"

Too often we blame God for our misfortunes or for the way things go for us or for those close to us.

Habakkuk's response was not to throw in the towel and give up. He decided to seek for an answer by patiently waiting for the Lord's response. He went to his favorite "retreat center" and there waited for the Lord's answer.

During his "watch" the Lord came to him with his answer to Habakkuk's perplexing questions. The answer may not have satisfied Habakkuk anymore than it might satisfy us, for God said that no immediate actions were forthcoming, but at the "appointed time" he would make his intentions known.

Sing a Song Anyway [Hab. 3:1-19]

When things do not turn out for us as we desire for them, we find it difficult to sing or praise God anyway. How can we sing or feel full of faith when we face such adverse and trying circumstances?

Habakkuk sang a song that held bad news for his appressors. Once he understood that right would ultimately prevail over wrong, he was able to move ahead in confidence. And what is faith but confidence that God is ultimately in control of the universe and all of life? Habakkuk sang a second song, one that reflected upon the goodness of God and his divine sovereignty over all things.

Habakkuk employed an often forgotten remedy for pain and despair, namely, memory. In his song he remembered those times when God delivered him and the people of Israel from certain enemies. Habakkuk expressed a confidence in God that foretold the future when God would bring trouble to those who taunted the people of Israel.

One of the most difficult things to do is to sing songs in the nighttimes of life. Anyone can sing when things are bright and cheery. But what about those days and long nights of waiting for pain to subside? For a loved one to get well? For the right man or woman to step into our life? For the right job to come along?

Confidence in God and honest communication with him will eventually bring us out into the light.

Dr. Trimyer is pastor of Elon Baptist Church in Pamplin, Va.

Uncorking the bottle

By REV. J. N. WILLIAMS

Have you ever tried to get something out of a bottle without taking the cork out first?

Some people remind me of bottles with the cork in. There is something truly good inside of them but it is corked up. It cannot get out to help others.

Do you feel sometimes like a corked-up bottle? It is a stuffy uncomfortable sort of feeling, but some manage to get on like that for months and months, to their great loss, and the loss of all who have to work with them or live with them.

My friend, if you are in this kind of condition, then go and get yourself uncorked.

There is only one who can take out the cork of self-love, or shyness, or bitterness, or hatred from your life. He wants to remove that which keeps you from pouring yourself out to the good of others.

The Bible says, "His names is as ointment poured forth."

He can uncork your bottle and then all of your sweetness and kindness and love can pour forth to others around you.

You can have a joyful service to the people you have to deal with if you allow him to uncork your bottle.

New church to open Sunday

This Sunday morning, June 22, the Appomattox Baptist Temple will be opening its doors to the public for the very first service in the new church.

The new facility, located on Rt. 727 at the junction with Rt. 604, is now ready for occupation. Pastor Ron Gallagher says that this first service will be an unforgettable moment for those who have worked so hard to see the church really become established in the community since its founding six years ago. According to Gallagher, it will be more than a face lift for their ministry, it will be, in many ways, a second beginning.

More programs and specialized ministries, such as those directed toward the youth and senior adults will be instituted, and those already in operation will be increased. The church has even adopted a new slogan, "the church where the Bible comes to life", and a new symbol to appear on their printed material reflecting their emphasis not only on personal faith, but on family involvement as well.

Pastor Gallagher says, "the opening of our doors is a two-way passage. Since God ordained that the church be the instrument through which he would meet the spiritual and moral needs of a perishing race, the doors are not only open that others may come in, but also that we might reach out."
